The air cargo digital solutions platform CargoAi and the all-cargo carrier AirBridgeCargo, part of Volga-Dnepr Group, are now connected to enable eQuote and eBooking on the more than 30 destinations served by the airline's 18 Boeing 747 and 777 freighters.

"AirBridgeCargo is a major global air cargo player with an impressive fleet of freighters and network. The teams are recognised for their expertise, and we are honoured to be able to support them by providing solutions to simplify their distribution processes. Providing know-how and added value to customers is a priority for ABC and we help them to do this by freeing up their time and improving their performance," explains Matthieu Petot, CEO of CargoAi.

AirBridgeCargo has been one of the pioneers in air cargo business to develop cooperation with digital booking platforms. The company has been aimed at enhancement of customer journey experience through user-friendly online booking solutions & e-services via websites and partners' platforms.

"This commercial partnership with CargoAi is another step in the digital development of ABC, since air cargo digital solutions platforms will undoubtedly shape part of the future of our industry. Thanks to the solutions available on www.CargoAi.co, we can expand our booking options for our customers worldwide offering the same level of digitalization that they get as consumers in their everyday life. The CargoAi platform will enable our teams to focus on missions which require a high level of human expertise and so improve the quality of our services, and also develop new ones. This is a real competitive advantage for our customers," states Alexey Zotov, Sales Director of AirBridgeCargo Airlines.
